A FEW WORDS ON SQUEEZING.—While we are growing very sensible, indeed, in the matter of dress, in the way of boots, balmoral skirts, warm stockings and high heels, we are degenerating in some other matters quite as important. The corset is not a necessary part of a woman's wardrobe; and alas! when a woman does begin to wear corsets, she will wear them too small, and will tug at the laces until her breath becomes short, and she feels it necessary to refrain from anything like a comfortable meal. We say nothing against a well shaped corset, worn loosely, but there lies the difficulty. A loose corset injures the appearance instead of improving it, and people wear corsets that they may have small waists. All we can say is, don't squeeze, what ever you do. You have small waists, but you are exposing yourself to a dozen misfortunes which are as bad as a large waist. First, you'll surely have dyspepsia, and grow yellow, and cross, and unhappy; secondly, your hands will soon grow red; thirdly, your nose; fourthly, you will be unable to walk a mile at once; fifthly, dinner will be a misery; sixthly, your shoulder-blades will increase in size and altitude; seventhly, your eyes will grow weak; eighthly, you will break down at thirty or threabouts, and be a sickly old woman from that time forth. If these truths do not frighten women from tight corsets, perhaps the information that gentlemen generally do not admire what dress-makers call a "pretty figure" so much as a natural one, may have some influence.

"MY UBEN."—During the war, while a train laden with soldiers was stopping to wood and water at a certain station in Georgia, a gentleman entered into conversation with the "boys in gray," when the whistle blew and the train moved off. One of the rebs on another car called to him:

"I say, my friend, please run here and pick up my oven and throw it on—it just fell off, and I wouldn't lose it for forty dollars."

No sooner said than the clergyman ran, picked up the oven, but was unable to catch up with the car on which the soldier was perched.

"Never mind, friend, just throw it on that car, please; I'll get it."

'Twas thrown as directed, and the clergyman turned, thinking he had done one poor soldier an act of kindness that day, but was immediately accosted by an old negro, thus:

"Massa, what you trow dat uben on dar for?—dat was my uben."

It is unnecessary to add that the preacher now believes to a certain extent in total depravity.

AN IRISH VALENTINE.—"Och, Paddy, swate Paddy, if I was your daddy, I'de kill ye wid kisses intirely; if I was your brother, and likewise your mother, I'de see that you wint to bed airly. To taste of your breath, I'd starve me to death, and lay off my hoops altogether. To jist have a taste of your arm on my waist, I'd laugh at the meanest of weether. Dear Paddy, be mine, my own swate Valentine; ye will find me both gintle and civil. Our life we will spind to an illegant ind, and care may go dance wid the devil."

A CORRECTION.—A dispatch from New Orleans, published in yesterday's paper, stated that the widow of Mr. Horton, the clergyman who was killed in the July riots, was in that city trying in vain to bring a suit against the Corporation for the murder of her husband. We learn that this is an error. Mrs. Horton is now in New York, and has declined to prosecute such a suit, though urged by lawyers to do so.—New York Tribune, 23d ult.

GENERAL MEIGS wants the autographs and photographs of all the officers who served in the Quartermaster's Department during the war. What he wants of them, we can't for the life of us tell, unless he thinks the safety of the country demands that they shall be handed over to the Bureau of Police, to grace the rogue's gallery. We advise the quartermasters not to be too hasty about complying with so suspicious a request.—Chicago Post.

DAYS FOR CUTTING FINGER NAILS.—
"Cut 'em on Monday, you cut 'em for health;
Cut 'em on Tuesday, you cut 'em for wealth;
Cut 'em on Wednesday, you cut 'em for news;
Cut 'em on Thursday, a pair of new shoes;
Cut 'em on Friday, you cut 'em for sorrow;
Cut 'em on Saturday, you'll see your true love to-morrow;
Cut 'em on Sunday, and you'll have the devil with you all the week."

TRAINING FOR CONGRESS.—We saw a China boy, about the size of a pint of peanuts half eaten up, roll up his sleeves a la Morrissey, this morning, on Sacramento street, and proceed in the most business-like Melican style to set up the nose of a negro boy about double his size, who had been imposing on him. The affair collected quite a crowd of Caucasians, who enjoyed the sport immensely.—Alta California.

OUTWITTED.—Recently, in Sonora, Cal., a constable approached an Indian who had imbibed too much "fire water," and asked him where he had obtained his whisky. "How much you pay, me tell?" said the noble red man. The constable informed him that he would give two dollars and a-half, when the Indian replied in an indignant tone, "Ugh! you git! Columbia man pay five dollars."

CARDS.—A lady of Linn, Mass., who was going to the lecture at the Lyceum one evening recently, placed her hand in the upper drawer of her bureau, taking out what she supposed to be her ticket, and, without looking, put it into her pocket and started for the hall. Imagine her surprise upon presenting the pasteboard to the eye of the doorkeeper, when it proved to be a two-spot of diamonds.

THE Washington Republican says: "A gentleman from New Orleans, who visited the House, remarked as he came out in the general stampede which took place when the member of Indiana began to read his speech, that the lowest brand of wine in this city was the 'Julian,' and he was led to suppose that the poorest member of the House had a similar name."

MICHIGAN IN THE WAR.—According to the report of Adjutant General Roberts for the year 1866, the State of Michigan furnished 90,747 volunteers to the war. The total number of commissions issued was 6,669.

There is a young man in Springfield, fifteen years of age, who weighs 370 pounds.

Why is a billiard player like a thief in a crowd? Because he aims for the pocket.

Indian Matters on the Plains.

The Alta California of the 11th inst., publishes the following special dispatch:

New York, February 9.

In the Senate Mr. Wilson introduced a bill to restore the jurisdiction of the War Department over the Indians, providing that department commanders shall be Superintendents, who shall detail officers to take charge of the various tribes. The Secretary of War shall detail General Connor to duty in connection with Indian affairs. The Secretary of War shall also cause an immediate and thorough inspection of the tribes, their treatment and government, and accounts. The bill was referred to the Military Committee.

This indeed looks like a move in the right direction. Senator Wilson seems to have struck the nail on the head and commenced at the right end of the Indian question. It has long been apparent that jurisdiction over Indian matters must be restored to the War Department, if we ever expect to have peace and quiet on the plains and frontier. The soldiers can alone manage the savages, and we are glad to learn that Senator Wilson has taken hold of the matter, and trust that he will press it to a successful consummation. Then let men of acknowledged skill and experience in Indian warfare be put at the head of the troops, and it will not take long to render secure our great overland routes of travel and commerce against savage raids.

The dispatch says the bill directs the Secretary of War to detail General Connor to duty in this connection. This is a merited tribute to that gentleman and an acknowledgment of his distinguished services as an Indian fighter. The policy heretofore always pursued by General Connor, is the only one which can give assurance of a successful issue to Indian difficulties. That is, to make the red man feel the power of the Government through its military arm; whip him soundly into complete subjection, and then as long as he behaves himself treat him with marked kindness. A true soldier, General Connor was never known to kill or oppress a single savage, except on the field of battle in open and honorable warfare. Squaws and children were never ruthlessly massacred by him or his soldiers, but held as hostages for the good behavior of the savage horde. The battle of Bear River established his reputation as an Indian fighter, and his peaceful policy toward the savages of Utah—after they had confessed themselves whipped—had the most beneficial effects. Since January 29, 1863, Utah has not been troubled with Indian difficulties from the tribes which once desolated her lines of communication.

The campaign to Powder river in the summer of 1865, under General Connor, was ably planned, heroically executed, in part, and would undoubtedly have been attended with similar good results, if the troops had not been recalled in the very midst of their successes by the peace-and-blanket system of Doolittle and his sentimental coadjutors. Connor and his troops, well equipped and ready for war, were in the heart of the Sioux country, in successful pursuit of the demons who had committed so many ravages, and were on the very point of striking a fatal blow, after several hardly contested and successful fights. But Doolittle and his humanitarians had sufficient influence at Washington to have the troops recalled, and thus seemingly retreat before the savages. Notwithstanding the earnest protest of Major General Dodge, then Department commander, against such an ignominious close of what promised to be so successful a campaign, the recall was ordered, and the Indian Bureau, with its Agents, tried once more the bribing policy, at Laramie and other points where the savages were begged to gather and receive the presents of the Government. The effects of that policy, predicted then by every man who knew aught of Indian affairs, have since been fully realized. The savages of the Plains from Powder river to the Arkansas are still, and have been ever since, on the war path.

If Generals Dodge and Connor, who understood their business, had been permitted to carry out that one campaign the Indian question would have been settled long ere this. Until the same policy is inaugurated either by them or others who may understand Indian warfare, we cannot expect to have peace or security on the Plains.

Doolittle may "cry peace, peace," to the end of his Senatorial term, but we will have no peace, until there is a little war.

By all means let Congress pass Senator Wilson's bill, or something like it, and send Indian Agents and sickly sentimentalists to Coventry. Until that is done, "Lo! the poor Indian" will be in the ascendant.

The distance to be traversed by the Russian American and the New East India Telegraph lines may be estimated from the following figures: From San Francisco to New Westminster the line is 800 miles; from New Westminster to Frazier and Simpson rivers, 800 miles; from there to Behring's Straits, 1,200 miles; from thence to the Amoor, 2,500 miles; from Amoor to Kyachta, 2,500 miles; to Pekin, 900 miles; Elensing, 70 miles; Shanghai, 600 miles; Hong Kong, 850 miles; giving a total distance from San Francisco to China and New York of 25,000 miles! Most of the material for the construction of the line is already on the ground, and plentiful supplies of timber are procurable on the route.

Pacific Railroad.—A special dispatch to the Alta California says:

A letter from Senator Conness to the Vice President of the Pacific Railroad Company corrects what appears to be a telegraphic error regarding the resolution to re-survey the route west of the Rocky Mountains. The resolution was offered as an amendment to the Appropriation bill, and provides only for a geological survey along the present route of the Central Pacific Railroad.

BY PACIFIC TELEGRAPH.

[SPECIAL TO THE "DAILY UNION VEDETTE."]

Washington, February 20.

After transacting some unimportant business, the House proceeded with the consideration of the bill providing for the more efficient government of the rebel States.

Stevens withdrew his motion to recede from the disagreement with the Senate substitute.

The previous question was moved on the resolution of Wilson of Iowa, to concur in the Senate amendment, with an amendment to the 5th section, as telegraphed yesterday; but the House refused to order the previous question—yeas, 72; nays, 96.

Shellabarger offered the following amendment, to come in as a new section:

And be it further enacted, That, until the people of the said rebel States shall by law be admitted to representation in the Congress of the United States, the civil governments that may exist therein shall be deemed provisional only, and shall be in all respects subject to the paramount authority of the United States, which may at any time abolish, modify, control, or supersede the same.

And in all elections to any office under such provisional governments, all persons shall be entitled to vote, and none others, who are entitled to vote under the provisions of the 5th section of this Act; and no person shall be eligible to any office under such provisional governments who would be disqualified from holding office under the provisions of the third Article of said Constitutional Amendment.

The previous question was moved and seconded.

Boyer moved to table the bill; negatived.

Death of an Editor.—The San Francisco Times of the 12th instant, thus announces the death of a member of its editorial staff:

It is with deep regret that we announce the death of William L. Crowell, late a member of the editorial corps of this paper, who departed this life at half-past three o'clock yesterday afternoon. Mr. Crowell was a native of Bath, Maine, in his thirty-second year, and had been on this coast since 1862. He was a graduate of Bowdoin College, where he had taken the highest honors, and was a young man of ability and promise, who, had he lived, would doubtless have become distinguished. His life, though somewhat chequered in its incidents, had been one of study and preparation, and he was just entering upon the period of action. Of liberal education and unusually extensive reading, his ideas were wide, and his stock of information large. His literary taste was very fine; his writings were marked by no ordinary degree of merit, and had received encomiums from some of the ablest men in the country. Of unexceptional character, with a most scrupulous sense of honor, and a strict regard for truth, which would not permit him to disguise his feelings or state the slightest thing which he did not believe, his personal character was such as to endear him to a large circle of friends both on this coast and in the East. His warm heart, ingenuous manner, large fund of information, and keen appreciation, made him a most pleasant companion, and by his associates and friends his death will be most deeply felt.

The Florida Mine.—The Reveille, of the 16th inst., says:

The shipment of bullion obtained from the ore extracted from the Florida mine during the month of February, was made to-day through Wells, Fargo & Co. It has been delayed a week by reason of the ore waiting its turn at the mill. The amount of the shipment is $12,541.95, contained in twelve handsome bars which we saw this morning at the assay office of J. S. Currie. The ore was reduced at the Keystone mill, and was worked up to 88½ per cent., and the bullion averages 825 in fineness. The bullion is the product of two distinct lots of ore: the first lot of 8¼ tons gave a yield of $200 per ton; the second lot of 31 tons of first-class ore yielded the splendid average of $351 per ton. We are informed by Superintendent Sherman, that the yield of bullion for the month of January exceeds the disbursements on the mine for all work, including exploration and extraction, fully $6,000. So large an amount of fine ore is exposed in the mine, ready to the hand of the miner, that Major Sherman's estimate of the yield of bullion for the current month is $20,000. And yet the little Florida is least among the "razor-blades" and "shoe-strings" of Lander Hill.

A Dr. Hunter lately offered the London News six hundred guineas—equivalent to over $4,000 of our currency—for the insertion of six letters in relation to his method of treating diseases of the lungs. The News declined the offer, because Dr. Hunter (or his agent) required the letter to appear under the caption "communicated," instead of "advertisement."

Honorable Recognition.

The telegrams of the 9th instant inform us that Mr. Wilson had introduced a bill into the Senate restoring the jurisdiction of the War Department over the Indian [illegible] regularly recognized as [illegible]. It will be noticed that the bill [illegible] General Connor shall be [illegible] such an event. We believe [illegible] at present [illegible] Army, and [illegible] to invest [illegible] assigning him to such duty as the General would naturally prefer, and for which his past services show him to be [illegible] fitted. Be that as it may, the mention of General Connor's name in this connection furnishes an honorable distinction of which he may well be proud. He is a [illegible] example of the influence of our free institutions upon young men who recognize the necessity of honorable labor and who act upon that recognition. No single adventitious circumstance surrounded his birth, which was upon a foreign shore, nor attended his arrival in America. His story is best told by Bowles in his book of travel across the Continent, and although heretofore referred to in this journal, we deem the occasion a fit one to reproduce it. It is an instructive a study as can be set before the boys of our public schools, and might be made the model for men in the prime of life upon which they could fashion their future course with profit to themselves and advantage to the country. Mr. Bowles says of the subject of our article: "General Connor has a personal history characteristic of America. He was born in Ireland and came early to New York with his parents, enlisted in the United States cavalry when a young man, for service in our Indian Territory, served out his regular term, lived in Texas, rejoined the army during the Mexican war, and became a Captain, removed to California, prospered in business as a farmer and otherwise, again took up arms for his country when the rebellion broke out, and was appointed Colonel of a California regiment and thence by his well recognized experience and his services in this region (the Plains) was advanced to a Brigadiership and assigned to the command of the Military District of Utah; if willing to continue in service, as I am sure the Government ought to be most earnest to have him, and he is sustained in his policy he will most honorably and usefully connect his name with the disposition of the two great questions of National duty and responsibility in this quarter—the Mormons and the Indians. Twenty-five years ago General Connor left Fort Leavenworth, on the Missouri river, a private in the United States Regular Army, and lately visited the scene of his early military career filling the honorable position of Brigadier General."

When the above was written he was a Brigadier General, and the commander of a Military District second to none in the country as to the area to be governed, and equal to any in the delicate duties to be performed. It is the best proof of his fidelity and ability, to find him as we now do singled out as a fit agent to undertake the task he might have accomplished ere this, had not an unwise policy prevailed over the teachings of experience.

Let us hope that he will win new honors in the field to which it is possible he may find himself assigned. We need hardly say again that parents and teachers can find in the story of his life an instructive lesson for those under their charge.

General Sherman.

General Sherman has made a report to the Indian Committee, in the House, of his last summer's trip. The St. Louis Democrat compiles a column of extracts from which the following are taken:

Ever since the California emigration, this road has been traveled as common as the old national road, and the Indians kept clear of it; since then all the Sioux have been driven west from Minnesota and the Missouri river and the mountain region of Montana, Colorado and Utah is being settled up with gold miners and rancheros, so that the poor Indian finds himself hemmed in. The Indian agents over on the Missouri tell him to come over here for hunting, and from here he is turned to some other quarter; and so the poor fellow naturally wriggles against his doom. The settlements of Montana and Colorado seem now to be too strong for the Indians, who turn out roads, when the trains string out and the men scatter and straggle from the trains. Everybody, by traveling days and weeks without seeing an Indian, thinks it all humbug, and rides off a little ways and finds himself surrounded and gone.

Again, in the same letter he says:

The great difficulty is that the Indians, though classed as Sioux, Cheyennes, Arrapahoes, &c., are not acting in bands, but the older Indians generally profess friendship and an inability to restrain their young braves, who go off on their own hook and commit these acts of murder and horse stealing. They will sign any treaty for the sake of the annuities, but care no more for their part of the contract than if it were waste paper. There is a universal feeling of mistrust on both sides, and this will sooner or later result in a general outbreak. The whites who are looking for gold kill Indians just as they would kill beasts, and they also pay no regard for treaties; so that I see no good resulting from these treaties so long as the Indians themselves do not profess to be bound by them further than their individual interest.

We must go on as now, until by law all the Indians are put in our control—a thing that must be done sooner or later.

When we can find on the base of the Rocky Mountains and Utah the food for man and beast at prices reasonable and moderate, then the Indian question and the Mormon question are easy of solution. We ought to and must encourage this system of irrigation and cultivation to its utmost limit, and I shall extend my visit some two hundred and fifty miles further down along the mountains, and will write back to Laramie and posts in that region, instructing commanding officers to encourage, by all means, a similar style of agriculture as far north as possible. Nothing could be raised out here by the ordinary rains, but these watercourses, fed by the snow, are a better substitute, and the land lies exactly right for irrigation. Almost all of India, Egypt, south of Spain, Mexico and Chili are cultivated in this way, and they have been at various epochs of the world's history the granaries of the world. In Utah the system of irrigation has in a very few years converted an absolute desert into fruitful fields and gardens. The plains lying along the foot of the Rocky Mountains present a vast field for the same species of culture, and I shall hope that the small beginning I have seen will be the initiation of a system of agriculture that will prove of inestimable wealth to our people, and the solution of the difficult military problem caused by the vast distances without food for man or beast.

On the subject of Denver being made a military post, he says:

The question of this as a military post I decide, and emphatically, No! Denver needs no protection. She should raise in an hour's notice one thousand men; and instead of protection, she can and should protect the neighboring settlements that tend to give her support and business. As to a depot, also, I think there is no need of the style and extravagance of a quartermaster's depot, with clerks, stable, shops, &c., &c. It may be the quartermaster's department can buy here lumber and materials and send them with advantage to the posts within reach; but a single quartermaster and a clerk, with a cheap office, can do all this. It is folly to have here stores for distribution. They should go from the depots of Omaha and Leavenworth direct to the posts where needed.

In a letter from Fort Lyon, Colorado, he writes:

The Utes are [illegible] and peaceable, and the Cheyennes and Arrapahoes are off after the [illegible] only knows when, and I do not see how they can make a decent excuse for [illegible]. I have traveled all the way from [illegible] without a single soldier or [illegible] unarmed, traveling [illegible] as in Missouri. Cattle [illegible] loose, far from their owners, [illegible] to a starving Indian, and though the Indians might easily make a descent on the scattered ranches, yet they have not done so, and I see no external signs of a fear of such an event, though all the people are clamorous for military protection. I received at Pueblo a petition to that effect signed by so many names that I could not help answering that the names to the petition exceeded in number the strength of any of our small garrisons.

Reduction of Telegraph Rates.—By reference to an advertisement in the Alta to-day, it will be seen that the Telegraph Company have made two very important changes in regard to telegrams between California and the Atlantic States. Hitherto messages sent from this coast were always required to be prepaid, and it often occurred that messages were received from persons in the East, requiring an answer from the recipient of the message, and although the message was of no interest, yet the answer had to be prepaid or not sent. This cause of complaint has now been removed by the rule just adopted and advertised, which allows messages to be collected at either end of the line, always considering the parties sending and receiving as responsible. This will be a source of convenience and much satisfaction. The rate of messages going East has been nearly eight dollars in gold, while messages from the East were charged the same rate in the currency of the country. This has worked to the disadvantage of California messages overland, and been a source of annoyance. The rate hereafter for messages of ten words will be $6, in gold, and a like proportion for additional words, which is a reduction of about 25 per cent. from the former charges. Both these favorable rules of the Company will be received with pleasure by the business community doing business with the East. It is proper to state in this connection that the Company has now in good working order two separate lines of telegraph wire between this city and Chicago, and a corps of efficient operators and repair employes to keep them in working order, so that business will hereafter be done with dispatch. Between Chicago and New York there is a large number of wires, some of which will at all times be ready for use in the transmission of business between New York and San Francisco. The lines from Omaha to the Pacific will also be under the charge of the President of the Company here, which will materially assist in keeping them in working order. With this new order of arrangements it is reasonable to expect the utmost dispatch in business, and only when lightning and tempest take charge of the wires, and manufactured electricity is powerless against them, there will scarcely be a chance of interruption. The storms on the plains in spring, and continuing sometimes into the month of June, are often of such a terrific character that the operators have to "cut out" their instruments, or run the risk of having them destroyed, and possible personal harm.—Alta California.

Theatrical.—The San Francisco Times has the following criticism on a late dramatic performance:

About fifty persons were attracted to the Academy of Music on Saturday evening by the announcement that the play of Hamlet would be presented, the part of "Hamlet" being taken by Miss Charlotte Crampton, and that of the "Ghost," for this night only, by Dr. DeWolfe. The audience went prepared to be astonished, and certainly there was no lack of sensation, though the performance was not carried out. On the first entrance of Miss Charlotte Crampton, it became evident that she was, from some cause, illy prepared to enact the part assigned her. She ranted, drawled, ran her words together, spoke the parts of her associates instead of her own, and in the ghost scene very nearly capped the climax by falling flat on her face. As for DeWolf, he enacted the "Ghost" with a blue veil over his head, to impart an etherial aspect to his somewhat solid physique, and spoke in a voice so extremely bass as to convey the idea that his spiritual organs of speech were located in his heels. He held his truncheon as if it had been a dueling pistol, and the singular effect was produced of a ponderous ghost covering an excited prince with a revolver, from the range of which the youthful Dane in vain struggled to escape. The play was hacked and hewed in a merciless manner, until the close of the first act, and then the curtain fell. After half an hour's suspense, Mr. Lambert came before the curtain and informed the audience that the beneficiaries (English and Chris) had disappeared; that the carpenters and musicians refused to work, not having been paid, and that therefore the performance was at an end. He should have been happy to tell the audience that they could have their money returned to them, but unfortunately, the box office was closed and the money taker invisible. And thus ended as thorough a failure as was ever imposed upon the best natured public in the world.

Among the arrested persons in New York City last year are recorded 13 editors, 41 reporters, 793 printers, 94 artists, 44 actors, 385 scholars, 91 engravers, 122 lawyers, 139 physicians, 78 teachers, 795 merchants, 22 telegraph operators, 173 musicians, and 38 officers of the United States.

The St. Joseph Herald says that the Siamese Twins, who are now on exhibition in that city, have concluded to purchase farms near St. Joseph as places of permanent residence.

San Francisco, February 15.

Brokers are selling legal tenders at 73⅞@74, and are buying at 73¼.

Chief Crowley and posse on Wednesday night arrested Martin Burns, Wm. O'Hearn and John Connelly, and yesterday morning arrested John Backe, Patrick Maloney, Chas. Murry and Wm. McAllister, charged with complicity in the riot of Tuesday. The last bunch, or those arrested yesterday, are believed to have been engaged in the burning of the rope-works. Nothing more has been heard of any intent on the part of the rioters to re-assemble, and no further disturbance growing out of the labor question has occurred. The trial of the rioters arrested has been set for Thursday next.

The trial and argument of the suit of Isaac Rowell vs. W. S. Moss et. al., publishers of the Examiner, was concluded on Wednesday afternoon. After being out two hours, the jury was instructed to bring in a sealed verdict, which should have been opened yesterday morning; but it did not come until noon yesterday, when it returned a verdict for the plaintiff, awarding him $6,000 damages.

The suit of J. J. Pleasants and wife vs. the North Beach and Mission Railroad Company was tried in the Twelfth District Court yesterday. The action was brought by plaintiffs, who are colored people, to recover $5,000 damages, on account of the defendant having refused to allow Mrs. P. to ride on its car. The jury returned a verdict for plaintiffs for $500 damages.

AN old lady, remarkable for her confused idea of the meaning of words, describes a clear summer evening thus: "It was a beautiful bright night—the moon made everything as light as a cork!"

CANDIDATE.—Caleb T. Fay is a candidate for the Gubernatorial chair of California.
